PRODUCE DEALER'S
TRIAL OPENS TODAY

Five Jurors, Including Two
From Salem, Tentatively Seated at Noon

LISBON, Feb. 3.—A steel worker whose bride was found slain and stuffed into a barrel here last Oct. 19, four days after her marriage, died Saturday as Frank Cascio, 55-year-old produce dealer, went on trial today for the woman's killing.

Prosecutor Frank Springer was notified that 64-year-old Christopher Wall of Smith's Ferry, Pa., died in Mercy hospital at Buffalo, N. Y. The prosecutor said he was informed death was caused by a stroke induced by near-asphyxiation.

Wall, ill six weeks, was the third important witness to die. The others were Patrolman George Kidder, who assisted in the investigation, and Mrs. Lucy Lillie, described by Police Chief Hugh J. McDermott of East Liverpool at the giver of valuable information leading to arrest of Cascio on charges of murdering his former housekeeper.

Start of the trial, however, was delayed in the selection of a jury. At noon only five jurors had been tentatively seated, many of those for jury duty having been excused.

Two Salem Men Listed

These chosen include Wm. Reardon, former Salem policeman; Howard Harris of Salem; LeRoy Orr, Salineville merchant; John E. Marks, former Unity township trustee, and Alex Jenkins of Wellsville, retired millworker.

Mrs. Wall was found stuffed jack-knife fashion in a barrel at East Liverpool Oct. 28. Passersby discovered the barrel on a side street.

The state contends Cascio pleaded innocent at a preliminary hearing. Mrs. Wall was killed on the fifth day of her honeymoon with Christopher Wall, her second husband. Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp, who went on the bench last month, will be presiding at his first murder trial.

Cascio has been held in Mahoning county jail at Youngstown, where all Columbiana county prisoners are lodged. Arrangements may be made to keep the defendant in the Lisbon city jail for the duration of the trial.

Ray T. Adam's Eligibility
Debated As Appointment To Infirmary Post Is Held Up

Investigation of the eligibility of Ray T. Adam of Lisbon for superintendent of the Columbiana county home is holding up an appointment to this position to succeed John P. Neill, whose resignation became effective the first of January.

Adam's name was one of several certified by the state civil service commission on January 13. The investigation into his qualifications is the result of protests filed by the next two applicants on the certified list—Forrest P. Mason, west of Lisbon, and Roy B. Ewing of Wayne township.

When the list was certified by the state commission, following examinations of applicants, it became apparent that Adam was favored by two of the three county commissioners. Commissioners Clarence T. Robinson of Lisbon, Republican, and Frank Fisher, Democrat of East Liverpool, are said to have made it known that they were pledged to support Adam as the result of campaign promises. Commissioner John Smith, Republican of St. Clair township, favored Forrest Mason.

The appointment probably would have been made more than a week ago had not Adam's eligibility been questioned.

Farm Experience Specified

The first paragraph of the requirements listed by the civil commission for the position of superintendent, specifies that the applicant must have had three years experience, within the last 10 years, as a farmer, either tenant or owner. When attention to this provision was called to the county commissioners, the two Adam supporters are reported to have stood pat, indicating they would go ahead with his appointment.

At this juncture, Mason and Ewing protested to the state civil service commission. The state body ordered the county commissioners to hold up the list and an investigation was authorized immediately by the state.

Adam served as deputy auditor for eight years under the two terms of Auditor John H. Irwin. Mason, widely known throughout Ohio as a cattle breeder, has been a farmer most of his life, as has Ewing, who operates a farm in Wayne township. Mason is a Republican. Ewing a Democrat.

If Adam is disqualified as the result of the investigation, it is said the commissioners will appoint him to another position.

They were also given sniffs of phosgene, chloropicrin, mustard and Lewisite, all World War gases, to familiarize them with the odors.

Fish Attacks British Aid;
Fears "U. S. Dictatorship"
Comparable With Germany's

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Representative Fish (R-NY) opened opposition debate to the air-to-Britain bill in the house today with a prediction that the United States will be involved in war in Europe and Asia within six months if the measure is approved without change.

He also predicted that the government would take over vital industries, that civil rights would be suspended and that "we will have a dictatorship in America comparable to the Nazis and communists."

Philip F. La Follette, former governor of Wisconsin, testified today that Edouard Daladier, former French premier, had told him in 1939 that France expected the United States to aid it "with money, materials and men."

Testifying before the senate foreign relations committee in opposition to the administration's aid-to-Britain bill, La Follette said he had called on Daladier in March, 1939, and "asked him just what aid they expected from us."

"Money, Materials and Men"

"He replied without a moment's hesitation," the witness recounted, "that they expected money, materials and men. And he said that 'we are going to need them and expect them soon.'"

Senator Johnson (R-Calif.) asked whether "the French expectations have been justified by events."

"The money and materials are in this (British aid) bill," La Follette replied, "and I have no hesitancy in saying that the President would be justified in regarding his legislation, not as an authorization, but as a mandate to carry out the full implications of entrance into war."

Previously La Follette had told the committee that the legislation would "rest in one man the decision over peace or war in this country."

He declared that the bill also "defines weapons of war so broadly as to include virtually every piece of property in this country," and "allows the President to acquire this property and dispose of it to foreign countries on any terms he may see fit."

TAYLORCRAFT PLANT
DEDICATION IS SET

ALLIANCE, Feb. 3.—Climaxing a $200,000 expansion program, President C. G. Taylor will cut a ribbon across the main entrance to a new addition at the Taylorcraft Aviation Corp. plant here Wednesday.

The dedicatory ceremonies will come midway in a three-day gathering at the Taylorcraft plant. Directors will hold their quarterly meeting Tuesday, and distributors from all parts of the country will convene the same day, for a three-day conference.

With the completion of the plant addition, Taylorcraft will swing into a production schedule that calls for between 3,500 and 4,000 light airplanes a year. The company produces two-seat cabin ships, now in demand by colleges conducting civilian pilot training courses, and similar ships in both standard and deluxe models for general private and commercial purposes.

Truck Is Ditched

LISBON, Feb. 3.—Deputy sheriffs said Earl Watts of Wellsville was uninjured when his truck went into a ditch on Route 7, near Williamsport, when Watts attempted to avoid a collision with another car at 3:30 a. m. today.

Columbiana's Assemblymen
Eye Kasch's Bill To Place
County In Democratic Area

John P. Stephenson of East Liverpool and John M. Kerr of Yellow Creek township, Columbiana county's two Republican state representatives, are keeping their eyes on a re-districting bill, recently introduced in the state legislature, which would throw Columbiana county into a Democratic combination.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Kasch, one of Mahoning county's Democratic state representatives, proposes a complete change in congressional districts in the state. One of the proposed new districts would be comprised of Columbiana and Mahoning counties.

This, Columbiana's representatives point out, would make this county subject to the big Mahoning county vote, which has been heavily Democratic for several years. The bill is now in committee, of which Rep. Stephenson is a member. He believes it will never be reported out.

Stephenson introduced three measures in the house last week. One calls for the adoption of the so-called Massachusetts ballot in Ohio. This would eliminate straight party voting by removing the circle space at the top of each ticket. The names of candidates would rotate on the ballot with their party affiliation after their names.

The second is the continuing contract, or better known as the "teachers tenure" bill, which provides for continuous tenure for public school teachers. It passed in the senate two years ago but failed to reach the house.

The third measure provides that a vacancy in a county elective office must be filled from a list of three names submitted by the county chairman of the political party of which the former incumbent was a member.

In case of a county commissioner appointment, the probate judge, county auditor and county recorder would make the appointment in the same manner. By this arrangement a Republican who died or resigned from office would be succeeded by a Republican and the same rule would prevail when the retiring official was a Democrat.

GEORGIA CASE
BRINGS EDICT
BY HIGH COURT

Sufficiently Definite To Meet Demands, Justice Stone Asserts

OPINION UPSETS
DECISION OF 1918

Another Ruling Relieves Union of Liability Under Sherman Act

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The Supreme court held constitutional today the administration's wage-hour law which fixes minimum pay and a maximum work week for employees in industries affecting interstate commerce.

Justice Stone, who delivered the opinion, asserted:

"The act is sufficiently definite to meet constitutional demands. One who employs persons, without conforming to the prescribed wage and hour conditions, to work on goods which he ships or expects to ship across state lines, is warned that he may be subject to the criminal penalties of the act. No more is required."

The opinion was on a challenge of the far-reaching legislation by Fred W. Darby, operator of a lumber company at Statesboro, Ga.

Carpenters Not Liable

In another important decision bearing on labor matters, the court held that officials of the carpenters union are not liable for prosecution under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act for activities growing out of a jurisdictional quarrel with another union.

The wage-hour case opinion specifically overruled the Supreme court's famous 1918 decision which held unconstitutional a statute prohibiting the interstate transportation of child-made goods.

Apparently the decision would regulate child labor under provisions contained in the wage-hour law. That would make unnecessary further action by the states on the pending constitutional amendment to abolish child labor.

In still another labor case, the court upheld an order issued under the wage-hour law fixing a minimum wage of 32½ cents an hour for textile workers.

$15,000,000 PEANUTS

Not so many years ago Ohioans would have leaped straight into the air for a new record at the mention of a $15,000,000 increase in the state's biennial budget.

The fact they heard the same news Friday without uttering an eye twitch just about all there is to tell about what has happened to their mental processes where government spending is concerned.

Due to its importance, the federal government sets the pace for government finances. The figures used in connection with its operations have no more relation to state and local government, however, than the distances between fixed stars have to distances on railroad timetables.

Consequently, an increase of $15,000,000 in a state budget calling for $291,000,000 sounds like a transaction in front of a peanut vending machine. It would take from two to three more ciphers to hoist it into the federal government's fiscal range.

This is dangerous. It makes neglect of local and state finances easy, despite the fact they are the only ones that bear any true relation to the amount of income government can command. Due to the still active local conviction that debt and good government, like sin and the good life, aren't compatible, local and state governments are tied down to an approximation of what they can persuade taxpayers to part with; they do not have recourse to unlimited deficit financing. They have to help out with the More Abundant Life, but it's not their idea.

If necessary, Ohio should pass a law authorizing its officials to pad all figures with as many extra ciphers as needed to command attention. In this way it could be made evident that $15,000,000 (revised: $15,000,000,000) is not a drop in the bucket but a sock in the teeth. There may be nothing to do about it—there never is—but it's not in the Ohio tradition to murmur, "Shucks, what's 15 million?"

THE WRECKING GANG

Republican doctrinaires and grouches who never forgive Wendell Willkie for being a Democrat were bound to get their dime's worth of revenge sometime.

Led by that unflinching guardian of the days of departed glory, the Chicago Tribune, they are hanging the party's recent candidate in effigy for agreeing with the Roosevelt administration on the lend-lease bill, despite his insistence on limited executive authority. Some of them never had forgiven him for not making isolation a campaign issue; his visit to Great Britain is exactly what they'd expect of a headstrong character who thinks Great Britain's defeat would be of importance to this country.

Two things—make it three—emerge from the case the peevish party purists are trying to build up against Willkie. First, they can't possibly make him knuckle down because he is bigger than any of them. Second, if they succeed in hunting him, it will be at the expense of the Republican party; i. e., themselves. Third, whatever else happens, the sympathies of many thousands of voters who believed Willkie would be good for the Republican party but never thought the party was particularly good for Willkie are being alienated in direct ratio to proof that bitter-enders tolerated the man as long as he had a chance to win but never accepted his ideas.

THE M ERA

The late William Gibbs McAdoo had many things to his credit, but nothing that promises to loom larger in history than introducing what might be called the M era in federal finance.

It is the era of McAdoo, Mellon, Mills and Morgenthau, an era in which Americans have learned to talk in millions, instead of thousands—an era of money manipulation unprecedented in history.

McAdoo, Woodrow Wilson's wartime secretary of treasury, raised $18,000,000,000 for the government to spend, most of which was added to the national debt. Andrew Mellon, in an era of prosperity, did what he could to reduce the debt load; Ogden L. Mills got caught by financial collapse; Henry W. Morgenthau, picking up where McAdoo left off, promises to make the latter's $18,000,000,000 look like the operations of the ribbon clerks on a dull Monday morning. The magnitude of the affairs which treasury secretaries beginning with McAdoo have administered almost overshadows their individualities.

A WISH FOR FEBRUARY

May this be the month when great masses of human beings will be released from the tension of wondering whether Nazi Germany under Adolf Hitler's guidance can over-run and destroy Great Britain.

Said release from tension to come about in such a way that the same Hitler will stand discredited in the eyes of his own people as he now stands discredited in the eyes of all people who are not too easily impressed by a show of extraordinary force.

The above eventuality also to take place in a manner fitting to the dignity of men who refuse to believe there is no higher destiny than to be collared and tagged by a politician and thereafter claimed by the state, which is a weasel word for dictator.

And if the 28 days of this month be not enough, the above to happen in March, without fail.

EXCEPTION NOTED

Photographers don't coo, "Look pleasant please," at their victims any more. Most of the victims, unless their teeth are bad, look pleasant automatically at the sight of a camera.

This conditioned reflex has added measurably to the fun of living. If photographs must be taken, the faces in them should look as cheerful as possible. But there are some faces that aren't expected to look pleasant.

Particular reference is made to the smiling face of Baron Franz von Werra, one of the deadly Nazi armies, who escaped to the United States on his way to a Canadian prison camp. If this lethal offshoot of Aryanism is aiming to build goodwill for himself in the United States, he will look as though he realized the gravity of the work he apparently enjoys doing.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, February 4

ACCORDING to the lunar and mutual aspects this should be a lively and moderately successful day, depending upon the degree of strategy and deft handling of rather dubious and tricky situations. There is need for much policy and finesse in meeting circumstances menaced by undercurrents of a bewildering nature. In such treacherous matters it will be found that employers, superiors or those in prestige and power may not be depended on to lend a helping hand. Impulsive or wayward moods also menace in purely private affairs, although an intriguing phase may be turned to good account by tact and shrewdness, especially concerning art, drama, romance and confidential interests.

If It Is Your Birthday

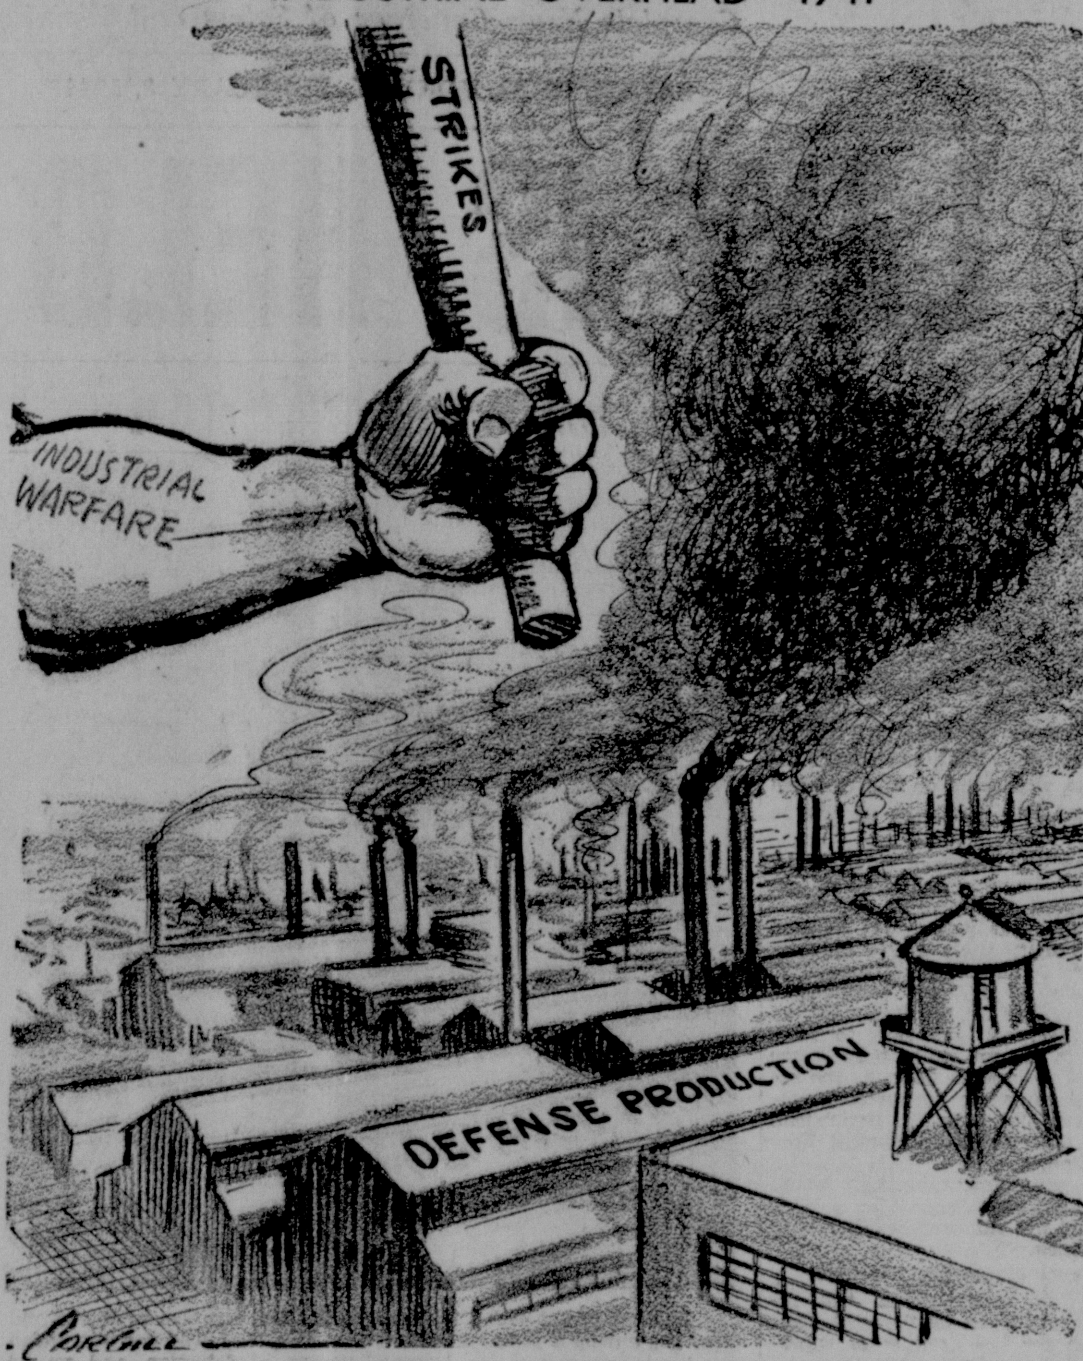

Those whose birthday it is should be on the eve of a year in which the productive and happy outcome depends upon a definite degree of cleverness, vigilance and clear insight into obscure, confusing and treacherous situations. Such menace may be successfully worked out by stratagem and diplomacy, particularly when dealing with superiors or those in authority. A similar state of affairs prevails in all confidential and intimate relations, although these may carry a benign and happy aspect, if impulsive and erratic behavior be suppressed. Under such rule the arts, drama, poetry, music and romance flourish.

A child born on this day should be talented in many forms of creative expression, with art, music, drama.

Mr. Willkie might just as well get set for the discovery that those things the bombers are laying over London aren't eggs.

Some people seem to forget there were two Sher-mans—the general who said war is hell and the statesman brother, who thought the same thing of monopoly, so wrote the Anti-trust Law.

DR. CLENDENING DISCUSSES NERVES

Reveals Facts Concerning the Hypothalamus

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

For a year or more now I have been hearing my friends who devote their interest to the functions of the nervous system, refer to a mysterious region in the brain called the "hypothalamus." I gathered it was a sort of regulator. It has much to do with all these normally unconscious activities of the body, such as the movements and secretions of the digestive tract, the temperature of the body, sleep—as well as moods, emotions, personality reactions. It perhaps even regulates the regulators of the body—the ductless glands, the hypophysis which lies near it in the brain, the thyroid and adrenal glands.

Dr. Clendingning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

As I was profoundly ignorant of this region, I was happy to find last week that I could purchase a book on the subject. It is a very large book for such a very small subject. But I have found it most interesting and as far as a man can who has just read 970 folio pages, I now know about the hypothalamus.

Small Piece of Nervous Tissue

It is, as I say, a very small bit of nervous tissue—this hypothalamus. It is a very old part of the nervous system—present in animals far down in the scale of life before they have acquired a brain. It lies at the very base of the brain, near the hypophysis or pituitary gland. It has nerve connections with the hypophysis and with many parts of the sympathetic nervous system which controls blood supply, stomach and intestinal movements, temperature regulation, blood pressure and, through them, emotional response.

"Here," said the late great Dr. Harvey Cushing, "in this well-concealed spot lies the very mainspring of primitive existence—vegetative, emotional and reproductive."

And to quote another great nerve physiologist, Dr. Foster Kennedy, it is "an instrument in command of vital rhythm."

Symptoms of Disturbance

To put into ordinary language what the neurologists say about it, there are five definite forms of symptoms that are associated with disturbance here: (1) increased sleepiness when it is depressed, and insomnia when it is stimulated; (2) sudden heating or cooling of the body; (3) unnatural weight increase, especially in children (Frohlich's syndrome); (4) water imbalance in the body—great thirst for no obvious cause; (5) motor irritability, even convulsions.

The temperature responses present a condition that must be familiar to many.

The clinical picture is dramatic. Most striking is the rapid rise of temperature, the relative warmth of the trunk and the icy dryness of the extremities and less frequently in the trunk. The small hairs stand on end and there is complete absence of sweating (anhidrosis). Thus it is evident that heat loss is reduced to a minimum as there is no sweating, and blood flow in the skin of the extremities is greatly reduced.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

C. M.:—"I would like to know how many pounds a week a person would lose by having only 300 calories a day. (2) Could a person lose weight by drinking only a pint of milk a day?"

Answer—(1) On 300 calories a day, a person should lose about three pounds a week. This calculation is based on the assumption that the body will use its own fat to replace energy needs. (2) A pint of milk a day is certainly a reduction diet but not a well balanced one. It should not be continued for more than a week.

V. S.: "What are the different ways you consider the safest ways goiter may be removed? way for a very weak person?"

Answer—A goiter sometimes goes away of itself. This is particularly true of the small enlargements of the thyroid occurring in adolescent girls and the small goiters that appear in regions where the iodine in the soil is poor. There is no certain way to remove a large goiter except by surgery. Rubbing iodine on the outside of the neck will not decrease the size of the goiter.

"HONEYMOON PREFERRED" by May Christie

Walter Mallory, eminent young lawyer, was Jean Garrett's heart. But she loved the gay, social whirl and also dated Tommy Aiden, society playboy, and Pedro de Moraes, sleek philanthropist. Walter and Jean quarrel about this. The rift, widened, one night at a dance, when Helen Hobart, Jean's rival for Walter's affections, contrives to have the intoxicated Tommy go off in Walter's cruiser with only Jean aboard. The escapade causes her wealthy stepfather, Rupert Van Aiden, to threaten to cut her allowance, and also brings a rebuke from her frivolous mother, Laurel, vacationing in Cuba. Jean and Pedro visit "The Blue Owl," a nightclub owned by Green, "The Gink," a shady character. Pedro takes one look at Mademoiselle Gaby, the new diva, and asks Jean to leave. Later Jean goes to see Pedro off for Cuba. She plans to row away on the boat and join her mother, but Gaby arrives and frustrates her, revealing that Pedro has a wife and three children in Paris. She explodes another bombshell with "I am your sister!" Jean goes to Gaby's poorly-furnished room where the latter shows her proof of her first marriage to Etienne de Fleury, Gaby's father. Laurel, deserted husband and child for Gene Garrett, an American doughboy who was killed in the World War, Gaby threatens to expose Laurel to her present husband, Rupert van Aiden, unless Jean invites her home as a guest and arranges for her debut as a society singer. Jean explains Gaby as a friend she met in Paris. The night before the proposed debut, Jean meets Walter at a night club. They slip out for a stroll. Speaking of her admirers as three aces, he asks: "What about the fourth?" "I'm waiting!" she challenges. And with that Walter takes her in his arms and kisses her. Next day, Gaby arrives at the Van Aukens home.

CHAPTER TWELVE

"I had a letter from your mother today, Jean," her stepfather told her, when the three of them were at lunch.

Gaby's hand shook so that a small tatter of embroidery fell on the white damask of the table.

The debt Treves slipped a fresh napkin under the stain. Was it Jean's nervous fancy, or did he shoot a suspicious glance, and not once only, at the visitor?

"But of course he recognized her. Your boat docked on time," Rupert van Aukens remarked.

"Gabrielle is a swell sailor. Maybe next time you'll be flying across the Atlantic?" Jean suggested, with forced brightness. She saw the butler look astonished.

"Ah, but I have not the money. Such terrible taxation as we have in France now!"

"You were really extremely brave to cross," Rupert spoke of the frightful turmoil of Europe.

Gaby seemed very well up on the latest war news, fortunately. In fact, Jean saw, half relieved, half resentful, that she was extremely bright. Her table manners were good—though she did hesitate once on which fork to use, watching Jean.

The latter thought: "She certainly has French nerve, all right!" It terrified her to realize the newcomer was her own flesh and blood. She was glad when the meal came to a close.

"Your trunk has arrived, madam," Treves told Gaby as the two girls left the dining room. "If you will give me the keys, Miss Garrett's maid will unpack for you."

"Thank you, but I like to take care of my own things," Gaby told him.

"He recognized you," Jean said breathlessly when they were alone in the handsome bedroom allotted to Gaby.

"Fool! A servant. What does that matter?"—with a shrug.

"I've got to hand it to you, you certainly know how to act like a grande dame!" was Jean's reluctant comment.

"And why not?"—drawing herself up to her full height. "Have I not the blue blood of France in my veins?"

She had dignity, thought Jean. She was going to play her part thoroughly.

After she had finished unpacking the clothes that Jean had bought for her, or given her, she asked: "And may I now see the rest of the house, please?"

She exclaimed with delight over the beautiful rooms. The luxurious comforts and gadgets. The profusion of flowers. The bathrooms, done in pastel porcelains, astounded her. And there was one to every bedroom! They visited Jean's room last of all. She particularly wanted to see it. Jean showed it grudgingly. She didn't want Gaby poking around in there.

"But it is ravissante! Oh, you have been so lucky!" Gaby went straight to Walter's picture that Jean had taken from his boat. She'd set it in a handsome silver frame.

"And who is that?" Gaby demanded.

"A very clever lawyer. A friend of mine."

"But he is quite beautiful! Rich, too, perhaps? Alertness in the black, inquisitive eyes."

"Yes. He inherited a great deal of money. But he works hard!"

"So? How strange! Hands and eyebrows raised. 'A young man with a big fortune would not work in France!'"

"But this is America. Our men are different," Jean's voice very short.

"I should like to meet this young Mr. Mallory, Jean. You will ask him to my party? You will arrange it?"

Poach, would she? French girls were merciless in their pursuit, Jean had heard.

"Well, discuss the party later, Gaby"—in a chill tone.

Shrewd glance from the black eyes. "He is your special friend, this Mr. Mallory, cherie? You love him?"

"Don't be silly."

That first day dragged past. Next day, something marvelous happened. Walter called Jean up.

"I was wondering if you would care to have a bite of dinner with me this evening?" He named a quiet, conservative restaurant.

"That would be swell." She could not keep the joy out of her voice.

"Then I'll pick you up around half past six."

Gaby's low, thrilling tones came clearly. "You are so sympathetic! I wonder—have all the American men a so kind heart?"

This was too much. How dare she? Jean coughed. She had to break up this act. But the sound that came from her dry throat, Jean was miserably but whimsically aware, more nearly resembled a whimmy than anything else.

Walter swung around, straightening up. Gaby rose from the piano stool with the eyes of a startled Goe. Jean could have sworn she'd spotted her in the room at least two remarks back.

"Jean! You startled me—like a ghost!"

Ghost? In her own house?

"Or Satan's daughter meeting the angel?" slipped from her before she could swallow the darn-fool answer.

"Ah! So you heard?" Gaby turned to Walter. "But I love the compliments! There's the first I have in America!"

Liar! Jean thought. And the accent fascinatingly broken on purpose!

"And now, cherie, will you please to introduce us?" Gaby cooed softly.

"Oh, I thought you'd already taken care of that." Ungracious. Wretchedly conscious of a high, rasping note in contrast to Gaby's beautifully modulated voice. "This is Walter Mallory. . . . Mademoiselle Gabrielle de Fleury." She added grudgingly: "My house guest."

Gaby, with the air of a duchess, extended a white hand. Had Walter taken leave of his senses—or found them—that he bent his handsome head and actually kissed it?

"I greet a real artist," he said.

"And isn't this ducky!" Why, oh why, had she brought this stick of dynamite into the house?

"Ducky? What a strange American expression! You will explain it, perhaps, Meister Mallory?" Dark eyes young, expectant, a little bewildered, turning from Jean to Walter.

C. all the cast-iron pieces of effort! Jean told herself. Gaby spoke very good English, and knew the meaning of the word perfectly.

"I shall have to give you lessons. I can see!" Walter was smiling indulgently. Bewitched by sly, clever Gaby, who was up by consciousness of male superiority.

Jean thought: "She's blowing his ego up like a balloon!"

Only 3,556 of the immigrants were designated racially as Germans and 5,512 as Italians, according to figures compiled by the service.

The service reported that 138,032 non-immigrants, including visitors, transients, and resident aliens, were admitted to the United States during the year ended June 30, 1940, as compared to 185,333 in 1939, a decrease of 25 per cent.

"The conditions existing in Central Europe have imposed an added burden upon the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service," the report to Congress said.

"Even while quota immigration for 1940 was but 51,997, a drop of more than 15 per cent from 62,492 in 1939, it was increasingly necessary to check with utmost care the travel documents of aliens whose departure from their home countries has been practically in the nature of an expulsion.

"In handling such cases, this service has done its duty thoroughly and conscientiously, in strict conformity with the requirements of the law."

"Miracle Girl"

Recovering from pneumonia in the hospital at Fort Meade, Md., Janice Dinsmore, 3, is shown with Nurse Lieut. Lillian Swamer. Daughter of an army sergeant, she is hailed as the fort's "miracle girl" because of her rapid recovery after administration of sulfathiazole, one of the new "sulfa" drug family of which the army is making wide use.

Answer to Critics

Pointing out that only 138,032 non-immigrants were admitted to the United States in the 1940 fiscal year as compared to 185,333 in 1939, the report added:

"This decrease in the number of visitors, transients, and resident aliens returning from abroad supplies clear evidence that sensational reports to the effect that floods of alien visitors are being admitted to this country on any sort of excuse are not based on cold facts nor on the accurate records of a responsible government agency."

The difference between the 51,997 immigrants provided for by the quota and the 70,753 immigrants actually admitted to the country is explained by the admission of certain non-quota immigrants, such as the wives of United States citizens, husbands who married citizen wives prior to July 1, 1932, and the children of citizens.

While 21,520 immigrants from Germany entered the United States, only 1,978 persons left this country to enter Germany. Forty-one persons were deported to Germany during the year, as compared with 172 during the previous year.

U. S., MANILA LINK PHILIPPINE AID

American Officers Survey Island's Military Establishment

MANILA — Coincident with the reinforcement of United States military and naval forces in the Philippines, the American and island armies are synchronizing their plans for Philippine defense with a view to achieving the maximum possible degree of preparedness, reliable sources have revealed.

United States and Philippine Commonwealth military chiefs, it is understood, are taking into consideration the tremendous pace of national defense activity in the United States in working out plans for the defense of the islands.

United States army officers were reported to have conducted an inspection of Philippine army training cadres, mobilization centers and depots to determine equipment needs and other defense requirements of the scantily armed Philippine militia.

It is understood the inspections were made for the specific purpose of estimating the appropriations necessary for financing a mobilization of Philippine man-power in an emergency.

Twelve Filipino Divisions

There are 12 divisions of trained Filipino regulars and reserves. Combined with the 10,000 United States army regulars in the country, including the Philippine Scouts, these divisions comprise the first-line land force of the Philippines.

Washington reports indicating the possibility of $50,000,000 appropriation for Philippine defense were enthusiastically received in defense circles here. United States army authorities as well as the Commonwealth government are understood to be in favor of this contemplated procedure. The sum, if it should be made available, probably would be used to procure armaments for the Philippine army.

The amount would not be sufficient to cover all Philippine defense requirements, but it would immensely strengthen the defense capacity. The Commonwealth normally appropriates $8,000,000 yearly for defense, but for 1940 the outlay was said to be only $3,500,000. The reduction was attributed to the official belief there was not much logic in training more men while there was not enough armaments with which to equip them.

While an impressive number of young Filipinos have undergone military training since the advent of the Commonwealth government in 1935, there has been little progress in acquiring armaments necessary to a modern military force.

Air Defense Strengthened

The Philippines' air defenses recently were bolstered considerably by the United States army's dispatch of two full pursuit squadrons to the islands. The United States army here now has a known first strength of 20 planes, while the navy has at least 26 long-range naval patrol bombers.

Naval forces in Philippine waters at present are stronger than at any time since the American occupation. The Asiatic fleet now includes three cruisers, the Cincinnati, Houston and Marblehead, three divisions of destroyers, an aircraft carrier, 8 boats, and 18 large submarines, 12 of which arrived here recently.

The Commonwealth has no navy, but the Philippine army operates an offshore patrol consisting of two fast motor-torpedo boats called Q-boats.

This patrol reserve has been created to absorb merchant marine officers and sailors into the national defense structure. Creation of the patrol and the reserve constitute the first step toward the organization of Philippine sea-going forces.

Major-Gen. Basilio J. Valdez, chief-of-staff of the army, has announced the appointment of about 200 merchant marine officers and sailors to various grades in the reserve.

Love My Dog—Love Me

Now is the Time to Beware of Contagious Colds!

At a treacherous time like this, with contagious colds all around you, what you do today may save you and your family a lot of sickness, worry and trouble later.

Follow these simple rules of health: Live normally. Avoid excesses. Eat simple food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular. Take some exercise daily—preferably outdoors. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

Then use these two time-tested treatments when needed.

AT THE FIRST SNIFFLE, SNEEZE OR SIGN OF NASAL IRRITATION... put a few drops of Vicks VapoRub on each nostril right away. This helps to prevent many colds from developing, because VapoRub is expressly designed to help Nature's own defenses against colds. (If a head cold causes stuffiness, you'll find that a few drops of VapoRub helps clear the clogging mucus and makes breathing freer and easier.)

IF A CHEST COLD OR COUGHING COLD DEVELOPS (some colds get by all precautions) depend on Vicks VapoRub to relieve misery. Rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back and cover with a warm cloth. VapoRub acts to bring relief 2 ways at once. It stimulates surface of chest and back like a warming poultice. At the same time it releases helpful medicinal vapors that are breathed direct into the irritated air passages.

Both VapoRub and VapoRub have been tested through years of use in millions of homes. When you use these two medicines you are not experimenting, you are not taking needless chances. Remember: If the condition of the cold fails to respond quickly to treatment—or if more serious trouble is indicated—call your family physician right away. In the meantime be prepared! Get a bottle of Vicks VapoRub and a jar of Vicks VapoRub today—have them handy, ready to use.

Ford, Mercury Move Rapidly, Creating Many Outstanding Bargains

Sale of new Fords and Mercurys to motorists who do not believe in keeping a car too long but who do believe in keeping their automobile in good condition has provided the Grate Motor Co. with many outstanding values in used cars.

Likewise, the management of the Grate Motor Co. does not believe in keeping used cars around for long and thereby is offering a large number of real bargains in motoring. A brief glimpse into the company's used car department would convince anyone that exceptional values are being offered.

Although a large majority of cars taken on trade-in don't require extensive repairs, a careful checkup is made of every vehicle before it is offered for sale. All adjustments possible are made to make the auto operate more economically, efficiently or comfortably.

Especially in the matter of motor operation is a careful check given every car and truck waiting for a place in the Grate used car department. Analyzers and testing equipment to check the motor, ignition and lighting system and other vital parts are used to condition a vehicle.

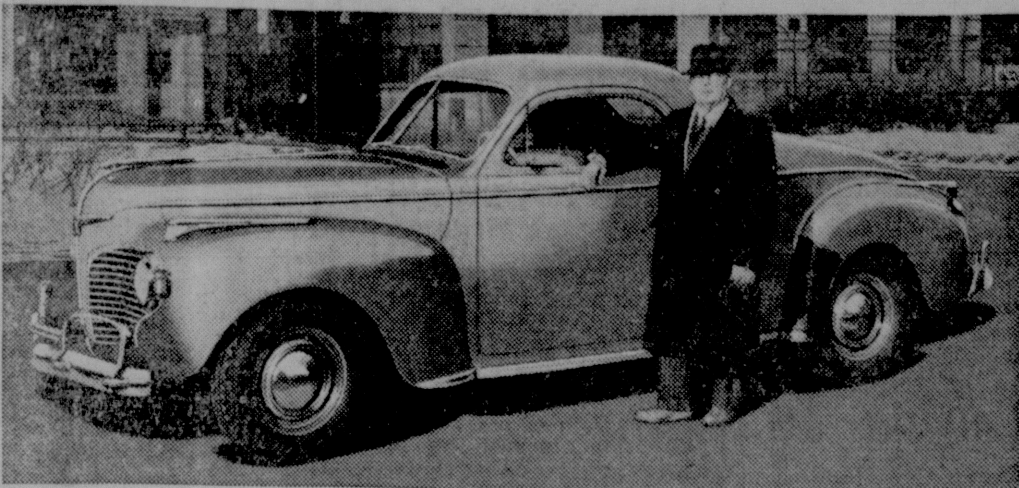

Skilled mechanics and workers in every department of the garage are available to give a used car their attention. Tires, battery, interior and exterior of the body are among the parts checked and adjusted.

The Grate Motor Co. is widely known for the expert work of its body repair and painting departments. If a used car needs attention of those departments before being offered for sale, the car gets it.

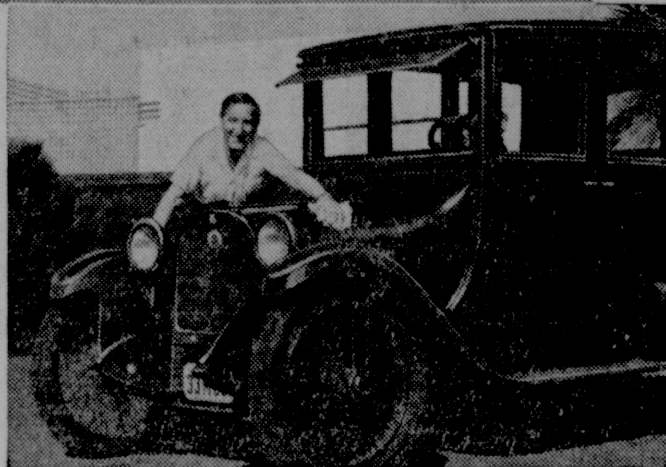

Invited to Displays
Visit the Grate Motor Co. showrooms for new cars and the used car department for bargains when you drive the present auto into the garage. Salesmen will be glad to give a demonstration of any new or used car one might pick out.

The garage maintains emergency towing and wrecker service for 24 hours daily and a telephone call to 3426 will provide any attention in the automobile field one might desire. A complete stock of parts and accessories is offered, as well as all facilities for the best workmanship.

SATISFIED CUSTOMERS

The facility with which the modern automobile satisfies widely varying kinds of customers is aptly illustrated in these pictures. The view above shows Dr. R. G. Borland of Conneaut, Ohio, a prodigious automobile traveler, starting from the factory in his twenty-second Dodge. At the right is Phil Halperin of Los Angeles, who has driven the same Dodge for 23 years and is not yet ready to trade it in. According to the California man, his 23-year-old Dodge has done nearly a half million miles without having been laid up for a major overhaul.

COMFORT SYSTEM USED BY DE SOTO

Car "Breathes In" Constant Supply of Fresh Outside Air

An improved comfort system, which enables an automobile, even with all windows closed, to "breathe in" a constant supply of fresh, outside air — cleaning it, heating it to the exact temperature decreed by the driver and distributing it to all parts of the car's interior — has been designed for the DeSoto car.

Frank Harris of Harris' garage on W. State st., local DeSoto Dealer states that "all-weather air-control" system centers around the automobile's cowl ventilator which, when open, is the entrance through which fresh outside air is drawn into the car. After passing through a filter, which removes dust, soot and dirt and has a thorough cleansing effect, the air enters two large-capacity heating units, which warm it to the point specified by the driver. The heater units are located up under the instrument panel, well out of the way, and do not interfere with the ample legroom the car designers have provided. One unit is at the car's left; the other, at the right.

To permit scientific circulation of clean, heated air throughout the interior, specially designed heat outlets are incorporated in either side of the car. These direct the air-flow evenly across the floor of the front compartment and also along the sides of the car to the rear compartment, providing comfort for all passengers alike. None of the car's occupants, front seat or back, are subjected to direct blasts of air. And the clean, warm air in the car's interior counteracts outside air pressure, thus neutralizing possible draughts.

DAMASCUS LUMBER CO.
DAMASCUS, OHIO

LATEST PONTIAC IS 4-DOOR MODEL

Dunlap Motor Co. Announces Metropolitan Torpedo Sedan

The Dunlap Motor Co., at 390 E. Pershing st., is the Metropolitan Torpedo sedan, a 4-door, 4-window model on the DeLuxe chassis.

The Metropolitan Torpedo sedan is the lowest priced sedan of its type Pontiac has ever built. It is completely new to the lowest priced 119 inch wheelbase line of Torpedo models and like all other 1941 Pontiacs is available with either six or eight cylinder engines.

Heretofore, this 4-door, 4-window sedan has been offered only in the higher priced 122 inch wheelbase Custom Torpedo line. Pontiac and Fisher body engineers are now making the smart styling of the top priced 4-door model available in the lowest price range.

The Metropolitan Torpedo sedan is purely an addition to the DeLuxe line. All other models including the 4-door, 6-window sedan are being continued.

It has that rear compartment privacy of the 4-window sedan, extra wide seats and the smartly tapered rear deck which provides an unusually large luggage compartment. The Metropolitan Torpedo sedan also offers a lot of extras as standard equipment including enclosed safety running boards, electric cigar lighter, ash tray in center of instrument panel, automatic dome light that comes on as either front door opens, adjustable right and left sun visors, dual tail lights and dual horns.

The advertised delivered price is $921—the same as the six window sedan, and as in other 1941 Pontiac models, it offers the choice of an eight cylinder engine for only $25 additional.

WINTER DOUBLES GENERATOR LOAD

If you think you're working harder than ever these days, consider the job your car's generator is up against as the mercury dips and the demand for electricity doubles and trebles.

You can help your car's generator during the winter months, the engineers declare, by keeping your ignition system in good shape, watching the battery condition, and using no more of the electrical accessories than are necessary at any one time.

It's good judgment to take the car to the Pennzoi Service Center at State st. and Jennings ave. at least every two weeks and let them make a careful check of your spark plugs, battery and other ignition parts.

SIZE, EFFICIENCY LEADING FACTORS

Dark, or Poorly Ventilated Rooms Can Be Made Over Easily

Work to eliminate factors which are termed as undesirable for a home is expected to take a sharp upward turn in 1941, according to Wm. Kohler of the Damascus Lumber Co. Mr. Kohler is in a position to handle all types of residential and business remodeling or construction.

The widely known Damascus Lumber Co. maintains a large staff of skilled tradesmen, outlines a few of the home conditions considered most objectionable. Some of these extend into the business and industrial field and can be remedied as easily as about the home.

Adequacy of size and efficiency of rooms in serving their needs is most desired. Mr. Kohler points out that rooms may be adequate for a home or business one year and inadequate the next.

Dark or poorly ventilated rooms are a bother to both the housewife and businessman. This trouble can be eliminated usually with only a small amount of expense.

Insufficient privacy is a bother in both homes and business places. In the home, sleeping quarters without privacy and bathrooms not readily accessible or accessible through a major room are frowned upon. More private offices, working departments and consultation rooms may be required in a business or industrial location.

Any or all of these troubles can be corrected individually or as a part of a general remodeling or expansion program. Mr. Kohler, who will handle any of this work, will provide estimates and suggestions for any kind or size of work of this nature.

Much remodeling is being done to correct a kitchen that's inadequate for or ill-arranged for food storage, food preparation and other kitchen work. Insufficient space for hanging clothes or storing linens, blankets and other household articles can be adjusted at a small expense.

Likewise, conversion of idle space into service provides much planning for a home or a business. A room, living room or study, laundry or basement room, attic facilities or children's play room are a few of the uses to which many people are putting this idle space.

The same motive is back of much remodeling for business firms. Mr. Kohler said. He is called upon frequently to furnish specifications for changing rooms or store space to give more efficient use, to enlarge present facilities or alter their use.

U. S. Studies Fruit Shipments Abroad

Exports Not Expected To Return To Normal For Another Decade

(By International News Service) SACRAMENTO, Cal.—Disrupted fruit shipments to Europe will not return to normal for a decade, regardless of war developments, according to Dr. H. R. Wellman, University of California economist.

None of the three alternatives of the war outcome presented by Dr. Wellman give a prosperous outlook for the farmer.

"If the axis powers win the war," he said, "the United States would probably be isolated in a totalitarian world. It would mean a serious curtailment of agricultural exports, particularly fruits, and the powerful nations would use international trade as a weapon to win political and economical domination."

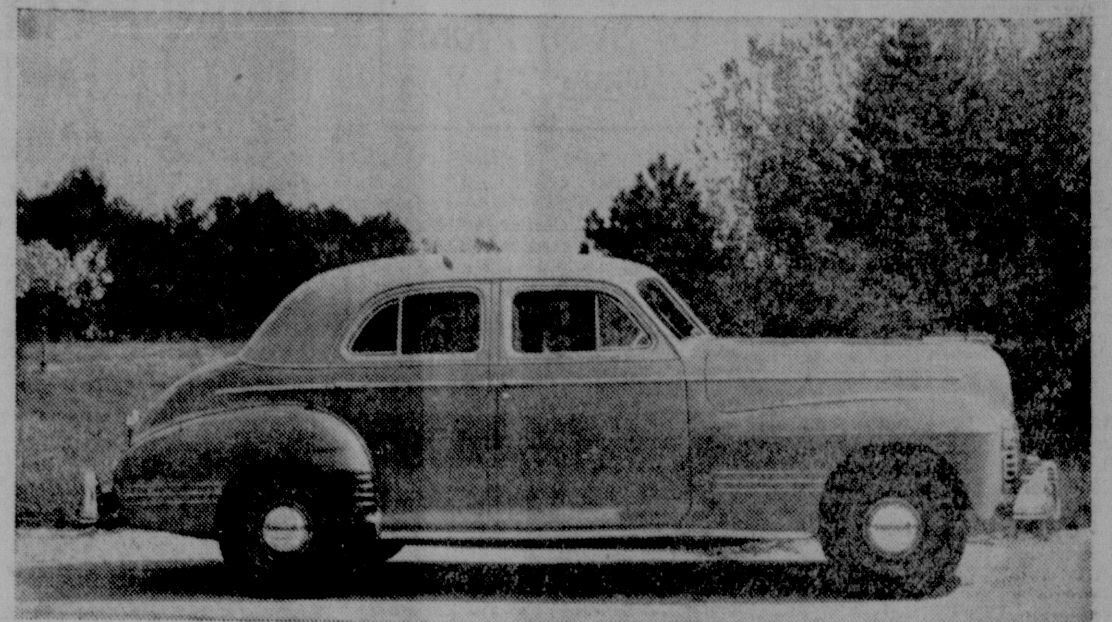

In the event England should win, or at least avoid defeat, it is

New Pontiac Metropolitan Torpedo Sedan

Pontiac has added this new Metropolitan Torpedo sedan to its 119-inch wheelbase De Luxe line. It is the lowest priced 4-door, 4-window sedan Pontiac has ever built, and follows in almost every detail the higher-priced smart 122-inch wheelbase Custom Torpedo 4-door sedan. It is available with both six and eight cylinder engines. Advertised delivered price of the six is $921—the same as the six window sedan. Eights available for only $25 additional.

Gomex & Manchaca Open Metzger Visit

"The marimbaphone goes a long way back," says Frederico Gomez, who, with Manchaca, open an engagement tonight at the Metzger hotel's Silver Cocktail room.

"I think on this continent, Guatemala"—he hails from there—"has done the most to popularize the instrument. It has been very popular there for a century or two and from there originally came the marimba bands which have had great vagues in this country."

"But, according to the history, which I have looked up, the instrument really goes back to the Kaffir and other tribes of Africa. In some parts of the Dark Continent, it is called marimba; in some, mahambi, and even by names that don't resemble those two."

"In its original form it consisted of five to 25 bamboo bars, arranged over a frame or a hollow resonance box. It was hung over the shoulders and beaten by rubber-tipped sticks."

"Yes," says Gomez, as he inspects his own beautiful and modern musical instrument, "the marimba has come a long, long way."

doubtful, he said, if valuable shipping space would be given to fresh and canned fruits.

A long war will leave Europe bankrupt and exhausted, he added, and the buying power will be pitifully small.

Even if the United States should enter the war, he concluded, agricultural surpluses would be reduced and prices would rise. "But, it would not aid the farmers to any large extent since prices of non-agricultural products needed by farmers for living and production might advance as fast or faster than those of agricultural products."

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Here's a few crumbs we picked up at the baseball writers' dinner last night—our glamorous Dodgers have two more deals cooking and one of them may make the front pages...

First Hambletonian future book (the White book of Florida) is out and lists Bill Gallon as the favorite at 3-1. His excellence is 4-1 and Florio 5-1. If anyone thinks Joe Louis is half the fighter he was three or four years ago, he can stand on his head right now.

Joe took the toobogan in his Detroit fight with Bob Pastor and he has been there ever since. Anybody who tries to tell you differently is only kidding you. Another tid-bit from the baseball writers' dinner—Bob Quinn (one of baseball's finest) can stay with the Boston Bees no matter who buys the club.

The C. E. Hunt & Son team, which rolled early last week, continues to lead this event with 2834. A few more five-man teams are scheduled this week, and interest will then turn to the doubles and singles events.

Tyson's 2811 was aided by a handicap of 282. Bill Hull led his team with a 588, his first and last games being over 200.

CHRISTIANS TIE BAPTISTS FOR 1ST IN CLASS C LEAGUE

Two Quintets Will Hold Play-Off This Week; Trinity Third

The Christians and the Baptists finished the first round of Class C play last Saturday at the Memorial building in a deadlock for first place honors, both quintets having seven wins and one defeat.

The Christian passers coasted to a 35-7 victory over the Emmanuel Lutherans.

The winners' scoring was well divided, Brian heading the list with seven points. Sell chalked up four of the losers' seven tallies.

The Baptists almost met disaster with the Presbyterians but managed to eke out a 26-25 win.

Pasco was the big gun for the Baptists, garnering 14 markers, while T. Moore swished in 12 for the losers.

The Christians and the Baptists will hold a tilt sometime this week to decide the winner of the first round title.

The third place Trinity passers found easy going in their tracas with the Nazarenes, ringing up a 38-13 triumph.

P. Nocera led the well divided Trinity point-making with 10 tallies. Carls paced the Nazarenes with five markers.

The Methodists didn't have much trouble in downing the Friends, 35-19.

The winners' points were well distributed, Hansell leading the list with 10. Mayhew put seven points through the hoop for the Friends.

Theatre Attractions

"The Philadelphia Story", screen play from the highly successful stage production which also starred Katharine Hepburn, is the State theater's attraction tonight and Tuesday.

The supporting cast includes Gary Grant, James Stewart, Ruth Hefsey, John Howard, Mary Nash, Roland Young, John Halliday and Virginia Weidler.

Once called "box office poison" along with several other big name stars, Miss Hepburn proves herself an artist of great ability in her role of the snobbish, cold Philadelphia debutante whose antics on the night before her wedding to another socially prominent Philadelphia, in which her former husband, and a young reporter figure prominently, shock the clans and their traditions.

Adapted as they are, talented as they are, the adult stars in the film are given a run for their laurels by young Virginia Weidler, who is so good as the impish younger sister of the debutante that she almost wraps the picture up for herself.
